CONSENSUS STATEMENT ON WOMEN & PREP

The evidence that PrEP prevents HIV for both cis and trans women is indisputable

- A review of all 15 PrEP trials and observational studies confirms that there are no significant differences between men and cis or trans women in terms of PrEP effectiveness: “PrEP is effective in reducing risk of HIV acquisition across types of sexual exposure, sexes, PrEP regimens and dosing schemes” (Fonner et al 2016)
- The European AIDS Clinical Society (2015) and WHO (2015) recommend PrEP for all those at high risk for HIV (defined by WHO as those in communities and sexual networks with around 3% HIV incidence or higher)
